LOYOLA'S NOWALKOSKI TO ADDRESS CANADIAN TRAINERS' CONVENTION

Ed Nowalkoski, Head Trainer at Loyola College, will deliver a paper this week at the annual Canadian Athletic Trainers' Association sports medicine symposium, to be held at the University of Manitoba (Winnipeg). He will address the gathering on Pre- and Post-Season Conditioning and Remedial Programs. On hand will be Canada's top sports medicine trainers, orthopedic surgeons, and physiotherapists. Following this convention he will go to Baltimore, Md., for the American Trainers' Meeting, where he will upgrade his own knowledge.

Nowalkoski, vice-president of the Quebec Athletic Trainers' Federation, was appointed last week as Head Trainer of the CFL All-Stars, who are scheduled to play the defending Grey Cup champions, the Montreal Alouettes, at the Autostade on Tuesday, July 29. The All-Stars will train at Loyola for a week prior to the game. Nowalkoski, who has attended the New York Giants football camp for the past four years where he worked with their medical staff, will be on hand for treatment of injuries and physiotherapy services.
